Church School System Reorganized Wilkinson - Taylor Assume Top Posts

A major step in the growth of the school system of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints has taken place. Monday morning, Dr. Harvey L. Taylor assumed the role of administrator of the Unified Church School System and Dr. Ernest L. Wilkinson was given full responsibility as president of the Brigham Young University.

THE MOVE, announced by the First Presidency, divides duties formerly held by Dr. Wilkinson as Chancellor of the school system and its offices which have been abolished. Dr. Taylor will direct the church education program for colleges, seminaries and institutes in the United States, Mexico and the Pacific Islands and will work under the Church Board of Education.

Dr. Wilkinson will have charge of the rapidly growing Brigham Young University and its auxiliaries, and will work under the BYU Board of Trustees.

THE SEPARATION of responsibilities between the two chancellors is the result of the imminent due to the tremendous growth of the Church school program, officials explained.

Concerning the administrative changes, Dr. Wilkinson said:

"I FEEL RELEIVED" that I will not have charge of the entire Church school system which has involved two tremendous areas of responsibility. I am glad I can now concentrate my efforts on making BYU the school of destiny. The in and of itself is a position that can well take my full time.

In the administration of his duties Dr. Harvey Taylor will have my support and cooperation. It is contemplated that in the administration of the other Church schools the unicification that has already been obtained will continue, and the facilities will be available to assist in the working out of the entire educational program. My best wishes go to Dr. Taylor in his new position.

THE NEW administrator, Dr. Taylor, commented thus on his appointment:

"I feel the tremendous responsibility in the position of directing the studies of more than 140,000 young people in the Church schools of the world."

UNDER DR. WILKINSON'S leadership during the past 13 years the Unified Church School System has experienced spectacular growth. Enrollment at the BYU increased from 3,500 to 4,265 full-time students and the University became the largest Church-related institution of higher education in the country. Seminary enrollment grew from 34,467 in 1961 full-time and 163 part-time seminaries in 1953-54 to approximately 100,000 students in 180 full-time and 1,700 part-time seminaries. The institute enrollment grew from 17 units with 4,265 enrollment to 20 units with 33,230 students in 32 full-time and 132 part-time institutes.

ADDED TO THE program during the past year has been the Pacific Island school system which formally was organized separately. It includes 12 more schools which already have been visited by Dr. Taylor while he served as acting Chancellor of the Unified Church School System.

Cougars Not Fast Enough umas Abate State 89-80

by Stan Hodge
Sports Editor

The Cougars swing back into conference competition this week against Wyoming and Idaho. Both soil, despite the sixth consecutive win there'll be no vacation to the eastern trip.

HE UTAH STATE Aggies ended Saturday that, however, the Pumas might be, they're not without vulnerabilities. These weak links that will in Stan Warner's blacksmith's anvil become a rusting job as Cats prepare to beat the Aggies off to a quick start as the Cougars couldn't get to the range in the 12 minutes. The American and State picked up the first 10 as the Aggies, the first of 37 which were to come before the evening was over.

THEM THAT much to build pushing their lead to a 15-6 margin six minutes into the first. The Mountain Cats began long climb back, but it was only after 20 minutes of the half that they finally grabbed the lead. They didn't keep it long, however, as 30 seconds before the score and I went ahead again 42-40. The lead by State began with seconds remaining to halftime eight points again, but the horn with the Cats on the defense of the scoring for one of few times this season. The Ags led at halftime 46-43. The COUGARS took the lead again early in the second period but not the command. In fact it was not until the final three quarters of play that BYU was able to insure their win.

The Aggies battled basket for basket, even taking the lead back momentarily. 73-72 before BYU came from behind and beat the Cougars 89-80.

FIFTY PERSONAL fouls were called in the contact filled 28 against State and 22 against BYU. Four Aggies were whistled to the bench and became the source of the final turnover.

Eates grabbed the scoring reins for Utah State with 37 counts and 24 of them coming in the first half. BYU's John Kirchhoff scored 30 of the Aggies' 80.

THE BIGGEST difference came from BYU's balance. All five starters scored in double figures; Kramer had 12, Robert 10, Nemelka 21 and Gardner 10, while 24 matched that balance, but they never conceded defeat.

Nearly 14,000 fans watched the game live on campus, 10,899 fans crowded into the Fieldhouse to see the game in person and another 3,100 watched the game on large-screen, closed-circuit TV on two campus locations for 13,919 fans.

Comparison of the two . . .

'Brave New World,' '1984' Present Pessimistic Picture Of Future Life

Editor's Note: This is the fourth in a series of book reviews of the Academic Yearbook Committee's Readings of 1964. Dr. E. L. Leary, Assistant Professor in political science, does a fine job of review on both Brave New World and 1984.

by Louis Midgley

Both Brave New World and 1984 present pictures of the future which are not unique. In their way, they are not unique. Not all of the "visions" of the future are as ominous and pessimistic as 1984 and Brave New World. The fictional accounts of the future have usually painted a picture of history in which the ambiguities of life are conquered; they have mostly been fully optimistic and affirmative.

For example, Dostoevsky's Notes from the Underground is the kind of "certain pallor" as the Indians used, only to insist that some men would prefer a chicken coop in order to remain free and responsible. A negative utopia was also presented in Dostoevsky's Tale of the Grand Inquisitor, and more intellectuals have come to believe that the fruits of education, science, technology and "social engineering," contrary to the prevailing optimism, may turn out to be democratic or less than uniformly good. Brave New World and 1984 show this concern.

SOME HAVE SEEN IN utopianism the secularization of the Biblical view of history. Brave New World is secularized eschatology. Man made utopia takes the place of the Kingdom of God. If this view is true, it points to the significance of the negative utopias, both the novels under consideration (and many others could be mentioned, for example, Zamyatin's We) paint a dark picture of a demoniac future created by man himself. What can man do with his history? The negative utopias point to the limits of human endeavor.

By force and violence, man cannot establish the Kingdom of God (Orwell), neither can he endpoint science and technology to achieve an unambiguous "haven" (Huxley). Some will hate all the unpleasantness, the gloom and the doom, in these two books. They despise or ignore the scriptures for the same reason. Others will be won over by 1984 (not Brave New World) as a weapon in the cold war or in some narrow partisan cause on the domestic front. They will fail to see the significance of these novels for the human problem.

WHY SHOULD NOVELS that describe the scientific or political partitioning of society receive any attention? The conquest of the natural environment by man's reason, which the peoples of the world have long demanded, has considered the vehicle for liberating man is now seen as the agent that will eventually deprive man of the possibility of freedom, responsibility and individuality. The world dominated by ruthless force and violence.

Huxley suggests that violence and force are inefficient methods for controlling man. Man should be made to like what he is about to get so that one doesn't have to "condition" and "train" him by drugs. B. F. Skinner, Harvard psychologist and inventor of a mechanical baby sitter, actually advocates such a program (see his Walden Two). Plato, the author of an early secular utopia and the darling of contemporary conservatives, advocates a similar program of "conditioning." The drug business is new. But remember Leary and Alport and the LSD—soona in our time.

THE DILEMMA FOR the Kingdom of God does not cease; it takes new forms. But why should Morgans have any interest in all this? I'm sure that the "we-have-the-truth, so why think?" crowd will not tolerate or see the point in any of this. And after having heard me speak, and heard many calling a matinee "dance" (with "music" yet) at the Y Center, I am convinced that no one will be at all interested in any of these questions here at BYU.

We have already been conditioned to think that we are happy. The Brave New World, our secular utopia, is closer than we think. What this means for the Kingdom of God I am unwilling to suggest. Perhaps just perhaps, some few will find pleasure in reading these books and perhaps, for the first time this year, this newspaper will have some genuinely valuable comments.
